MA Right, so multiple tiers depending on usage?

Hitokazu Matsushita 1:40 PM

HM Exactly. Consumer and performance tiers are fixed, while enterprise and industrial are handled through custom contracts.

Meera Ajam 1:41 PM

MA Good to know. So that doc is the source of truth here?

Hitokazu Matsushita 1:41 PM

HM It is. Feel free to reference it as needed for exact pricing.

Meera Ajam 1:41 PM

MA Does it clearly spell out what's okay to share externally versus internal only?

Hitokazu Matsushita 1:41 PM

HM Yes. It's marked internal, but it explicitly says the pricing is approved for partner pitches and supplier discussions.

Meera Ajam 1:41 PM

MA Perfect. That'll make things a lot cleaner when questions come up.

Hitokazu Matsushita 1:41 PM

HM Agreed. It also explains why enterprise and OEM pricing is custom, so there's context if anyone pushes back.

Meera Ajam 1:41 PM

MA Great — I'll make sure we stick to that doc.

The chat history on the left shows various messages. The main chat area displays a message from Serena Davis dated '5/12, 9:15 AM'. Below the text is an image gallery with three images: pink roses, a purple mountain landscape, and a plate of food. A consent dialog box is overlaid on the right side of the chat, titled 'Let Teams create your voice profile'. The dialog explains that Teams technology collects and processes voice data to build a unique voice profile. It lists two benefits: being identified in meeting rooms, transcripts, and notes; and isolating the voice from surrounding noise. It also states that users can delete their profile or create one in 'recognition settings' and that data is retained as described in a 'Learn More' link. The dialog concludes with the statement: 'By opting in, you consent to the collection and use of your data. Privacy policy'. At the bottom of the dialog are two buttons: 'Opt out' and 'Opt in', with the 'Opt in' button highlighted with a green border. The chat continues with another message from Serena Davis at the bottom of the screen.
